

We are looking for Service Technician / Supervisor (m/f/d)

If you enjoy taking care of customers and leading a team, consider joining us as a supervisor. You will be directly involved in the day-to-day work of our service department, scheduling work, communicating with customers and directing the work of technicians on site. Your focus will be on our customers and the assembly team with the goal of providing superior customer service and fostering a great work environment. This is a challenge with a high willingness to travel

Your profile,

- professional in electronics, mechatronics (or equivalent), alternatively, several years of experience in the maintenance and installation of poultry house installations
- Systematic and structured work on the construction site
- Professional and confident appearance
- A calm and deliberate nature, as well as a balanced personality
- Two to three years of practical work experience are beneficial
- The ability to present understandable technical problems even to laymen
- Command of English language and the ability to communicate with international clients in at least one foreign language und the will to learn German

If we were supposed to have awakened your interest, please get in touch with us and look forward to your convincing application and your CV.

hr@hellmannpoultry.de

Hellmann Poultry GmbH offers equal employment opportunities for all individuals. If you are interested in a demanding and versatile activity, we look forward to receiving your complete application documents with photograph indicating your earliest possible starting date.